

Nevada State Mural Project III

In celebration of the City of Henderson's Go with The Flow Mural Days (November 15-20, 2021) and the Office of Arts & Culture's The Artist at Work series, we are pleased to announce a call for art from a Nevada artist or artist team to design and create a mural on the back wall of the trash enclosure at the Raker Student Success Center.

Facing the Harry Reid Union Pacific Railroad Trail, this public mural is an ideal location to celebrate the natural beauty of the land and its history. Themes related to, but not limited to, visitors and bicyclists on the trail, the path and railroad leading to the Hoover Dam, and the history of the region are welcome.

See the final page for an image and dimensions of the site.

PROJECT BUDGET

The artist or artist team selected will be paid $6,000 in two payments: $1,500 upon approval of final drawings, and $4,500 upon satisfactory completion of the work. Nevada State's Office of Arts & Culture will provide primer, and graffiti coating which must be applied upon completion. Selected artists for this project will need to create an account through www.suppliers.nevada.edu before the project can begin.

Artists are strongly encouraged to register as a supplier in advance at the time of submitting their materials.

SUPPLIES

Artist(s) will provide their own paint and supplies. Artists are required to add an anti-graffiti coat of paint to their work, which will be provided by the Office of Arts & Culture. Please include a proposed comprehensive list of supplies and paint to be used for the project with your submission. The final agreement for the project will also include details about maintenance of the mural.

SELECTION

The artist or artist team will be chosen by the Office of Arts & Culture in consultation with members of the Nevada State Sustainability Council, which is made up of students, faculty, and staff. Nothing in this call shall be construed as guaranteeing any artist that the scope of work will be selected for the project.
